TELEGRAM BUREAU
HIGH POINT, N. C., Oct. 29, '98.

There will be no services at the Presbyterian church tomorrow except Sunday school. Rev. J. R. Savage, of Asheville, will preach at the M. P. church tomorrow. Preaching at the M. E. church tomorrow morning by the pastor, Rev. J. R. Scroggs and at night by Rev. P. J. Carraway, P. E.
Quarterly conference will be held in the church on Monday. Services at Baptist church will be conducted either by the pastor or Rev. Mr. Corrick.
The usual services at Friends church.

The democratic club will not meet on Monday night as usual, but will meet promptly at 7 o'clock in the Anchor warehouse on Tuesday night. Hon.
Jas. H. Pou, of Raleigh, will address the people immediately after the club gets through their business. Mr. Pou is one of the state's ablest speakers and we trust will have a large attennoon while trying to steal F. G. Barbee's wheel decided that they could not

These boys though they are small should be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

Hon. W. W. Kilgip, democratic candidate for Congress, fifth district, arrived about five o'clock last night and stayed at the hotel. He will leave this morning for Greensboro, to speak very short, but it was good to hear of a man named Toney. Toney actually saved the limb he was sitting on, and was only saved from being hurt by falling on his head, that being the hardest knot about his corporosity.

In addition to Colonel Julian S.
Carr's $10,000 at one time, and his generous gift annually, with others, to defray the running expenses of the college for several years, there has been given by others several small sums that went into the endowment fund with Col. Carr's $10,000. What sum that makes at this time I do not know certainly, but it is very small. At any rate, I am quite sure that if the "senior editor" succeeds in repudiating and returning Mr. Duke's money, there is not enough endowment left—or buildings, or anything else, for that matter —except the land given by Col. Carr, worth any further attention, or effort, much less "sharing more largely with Old Trinity." Does the "senior editor" expect to "eat his cake and have it, too?" He seems to want Mr. Duke's money to share with Old Trinity, and at the same time abuses Mr. Duke for giving it. What will he do? Will he cut loose from Mr. Duke but hold on to the boodle? This will be a gay performance for men and angels to witness. Let the curtain rise!

Meanwhile, would it not be right for Bro. Crawford to return the wicked money which he received while acting as one of the professors in the college?
Or was the vileness of the money the reason for his being out?

But another condition which the "senior editor" requires before he will let his "preachers" pledge themselves to a continued support of the college, is that there must be "a change of the spirit and policy that have dominated it for the past two years." What spirit and policy does he refer to. Did he not have his own son educated there in the buildings put up with Mr.
Duke's money, which he affects to identify with a bugaboo of a trust?

And why does the "senior editor" fix only the "last two years" as the rise of the "spirit and policy that dominates the college?" He knows that present spirit and policy runs several years back prior to the "last two years, and it is the same now, if I understand it, that it was then. Dr.
Kilgip, in reply to a statement of mine, told me there was no intention to make war on the University. He knew me to be a friend of Chapel Hill, and I am sure he never said anything to me, nor have I ever heard him say anything in public, that could be

DR. YATES ON TRINITY COLLEGE

He Takes Up The Items Separately And Lays Down The Facts in Connection—A Strong Letter.

Mr. Editor—In a recent issue of the North Carolina Christian Advocate, the "senior editor," Rev. Mr. Crawford, in a long editorial, gives a sort of impersonal resume of what he affects to think "many people believe" as to Trinity College. The News and Observer gets the pitch of the "senior editor's" article in the following extract, and it is all there is in it, except the bitterness towards the college which the "senior editor" has been partially holding in for three or four years. I quote from his article:

"We are impressed that unless the trustees inaugurate a movement very soon looking to relieving the college from connection with the American Tobacco Company, and let Old Trinity share more largely in the benefits of the endowment fund, and change the spirit and policy that have dominated it for the past two years, our preachers will be slow to pledge themselves to its continued support."

Now, this is intended to be a terrific warning, if not a death-blow. But a little examination will show that it is as thoughtless as it is illogical. "The college must be relieved from connection with the American Tobacco Company, and let Old Trinity share more largely in the benefits of the endowment fund," says the editor. It is only necessary to ask. What endowment fund does this able editor refer to? How can Old Trinity share "more largely in the endowment fund, if Bro.
Crawford cuts loose from and returns Bro. Duke's money, which he affects to identify with the American Tobacco Company? No one knows better than this "senior editor," if he had any sense, that if he cut loose from the American Tobacco Company, he would be cutting loose from the same source? And how can he know if it hurt the old worn-out preachers, and if not, why not? Moreover, did not Brethren Crawford, Carraway, Weaver, et al.,

vote thanks to Mr. Duke for his "generous gift?" It seems that their tender consciences are tender only on one side, and that side against Trinity College.

These brethren seem to think that the American Tobacco Company manufactures nothing but cigarettes. Why, cigarettes is only a drop in the bucket compared with all the other kinds of tobacco the company manufactures.
So that if it is only the cigarette money they object to, it will be easy to see how little of the Duke endowment is from cigarettes—the greater part of it being the money made from the manufacture and sale of all the other kinds manufactured by the company. So that if the "senior editor" will put his mathematics to work upon the problem there may be something to "share with Old Trinity" after all. I know he will thank me for this suggestion.

Of course, this drives the discussion back to the question as to whether men, women or boys ought to use tobacco in any way. I am not advocating its use; though I am inclined to think that a very moderate chew of a morning might be of advantage to Bro. Carraway. But this is true, that if it is morally wrong to use it; and if it is morally wrong to manufacture tobacco it is morally wrong to use it, it is morally wrong to grow it. And so the foolishness of the cranks runs everything back to hurt the poor farmers.

When will men learn that all sin is the misuse of an otherwise good thing?

Why did not the tobacco conscience of these brethren hurt them years ago, and why does it not hurt them now, when every week they are receiving money from the growing, manufacturing and use of tobacco? How can they do this, and how do they abstain from raising their eloquent voices against it, from its growing to the using? Why did their consciences not hurt them when they were passing resolutions of thanks to Mr. Duke?
What has given such vitality to their new-born zeal? Have they not, innocently, allowed the politicians to manufacture their consciences for them?

The "senior editor" borrows to the milk in the cocoanut when he asks for a larger "share in the endowment fund for Old Trinity." There has been a small party in the Western Conference ever since the division into two conferences, looking to the establishment of a college for that conference,

properly construed into enmity to that venerable institution. What else?

All that is meant by "Christian education," if I understand it, is that, other things being equal, a Christian parent would rather his child should be educated by religious teachers.
And it goes without saying that, other things being equal, a Presbyterian, or Baptist, or Episcopalian, or Methodist, would prefer that children educated at their own church college.
There might be special reasons why they should send to some other institution, and this would be all right, and no objections urged by the friends of Trinity. But no one knows better than the president and faculty of Trinity College that the doctrine of their church is, touching the beginning of a Christian life that which is called the "New Birth," and that this change can only be produced by the power of the Holy Spirit. Does the "senior editor" object to this?

What else? Perhaps he refers to the withdrawal of the free scholarships.
But how can he do this, when Mr.
Duke's money was the support of the free scholarships. To follow the logical conclusion of his premises, he ought to be giving Mr. Duke to withdraw everything. And then what would the "senior editor" have to share with the new-born apple of his eye. Old Trinity? The truth is, it is almost impossible to guide free scholarships to the objects for which they are inaugurated. The real object is hardly ever attained; for, manage as best we may, they generally go to young men who are able to pay for their own education. But the "senior editor," with his declared principles, is the last man that ought to hint that Mr. Duke ought to restore the free scholarships.

But this is true—although I cannot speak as to details, not having been a trustee since the accession of Dr. Kil-go—no poor young man is turned away from Trinity College because he is too poor to pay. If otherwise he is all right, and possesses qualifications making it worth the expenditure, he is given all the help needed.

What other objection has the "senior editor?" Why, the money comes from a member of a Trust. But, let me ask the "senior editor," if the two hundred and fifty dollars given annually by Mr. Duke to the fund for worn-out preachers of the Western Conference did not come from the same source?
And how can he know if it hurt the old worn-out preachers, and if not, why not? Moreover, did not Brethren
Crawford, Carraway, Weaver, et al.,
vote thanks to Mr. Duke for his "generous gift?" It seems that their ten-
side, and that side against Trinity

Washington, Oct. 29.—The annual report of the Dawes Indian commission, bringing the work of that body in reorganizing the Indian Territory up to date early this week, was made public today. The report urges that some provision be made by the government for educational purposes. The whites should have separate provision for schools. There are three hundred thousand residents in the territory.

HANDS NOT TIED.

Washington, Oct. 29.—Advices from Paris say there is no change in the peace negotiations situation and the statement is reiterated that the negotiations are in a fair way to be brought to a speedy termination. Secretary Hay, in answer to the inquiry about the reports of the probable purchase of the Philippines, said, "The hands of the commissioners are not tied," meaning that the matter is left to their discretion.

FIVE EXECUTIONS.

Candia, Oct. 29.—Five more Musselman's who were convicted for taking part in the massacre of British soldiers on September 8th, were executed today, and four Bashi Hazooks were sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment.

EARLIER THAN USUAL.

London, Oct. 29.—Influenza has appeared earlier this winter than usual.
There have been fifteen deaths this week.

WHY HE HESITATES.

London, Oct. 29.—The Central News dispatch from Paris says Defreynelet has not yet definitely accepted the war portfolio. It is stated that he is hesitating in his acceptance of the place because of the probability of a retrial of the Dreyfus case.

ABSOLUTELY FALSE.

Paris, Oct. 29.—The report that Marchand had been ordered to leave Fashoda is declared upon semi-official authority to be absolutely false.

BRYAN IMPROVING.

Savannah, Oct. 29.—Col. W. J.
Bryan continues to improve and his wife will not come from Nebraska as was at first expected.

SIR HENRY IRVING'S ILLNESS.

London, Oct. 29.—Sir Henry Irving's illness is more serious than was at first reported. He has been confined to his bed for a fortnight.

REVISION GRANTED.

Paris, Oct. 29.—The Court of Cassation has decided to grant a revision of the Dreyfus case and will institute a supplementary inquiry. The order of release was declined.

Will Marchand Withdraw.

London, Oct. 28.—The Pall Mall Gazette summarizes the result of the meeting of the British Cabinet as follows:
"Marchand must withdraw unconditionally, and the question of France to the accession of the Nile will not be discussed. When Marchand withdraws then it will be determined whether questions will be raised to admit of discussion, and every facility will be afforded to assist the withdrawal of Marchand. If he refuses to withdraw he will be treated as a foreign visitor and will not be allowed reinforcement because he left France to adopt active measures to precipitate a conflict."

Washington, Oct. 29.—The navy department, which was early in the field to secure a good wharf site for a na-such effort to secure a similar advantage for Cuba. The department doesn't see any necessity for anything more in Southern Cuba.

Politics is the all-absorbing topic now, and will be until after the election. Newspapers are devoting all their space to politics, and people talk politics six days a week and on Sunday for full measure. We think a little diversity will be wholesome at this point. It will give a breathing spell. We, therefore, take pleasure in introducing today Rev. Dr. E. A. Yates, in a lengthy letter on a subject that is interesting many of our good church people. In fact, people who are not church people have been taking a hand; but it is a matter which more directly concerns members of the Methodist church.

The charge that Editor J. W. Bailey, of the Biblical Recorder, was paid for mileage while he was a member of the board of agriculture is false. We understand Mr. Douglas has been making this charge. He certainly knows better than that, and we regret that he has no higher regard for the truth. Mr. Douglas knows that Mr. Bailey lives in Raleigh and that he lived there all the time he was a member of the agricultural board. He could not, therefore, collect mileage had he been so disposed. Mr. Douglas leaves his party officials in a bad light when he says they granted and paid mileage to a man who was not entitled to it. Had Mr. Douglas thought of this?

MERRITT GETTING SICK.

Brooks Making It Warm for His Opponent.

A. L. Brooks, democratic candidate for Solicitor in this district, spent last night with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Z. T. Brooks, in West Durham. He came over from Oxford last night, where he spoke yesterday. Today he had an appointment to speak at Mangum's Store.

In conversation with a Sun reporter he said that his opponent, W. D. Merritt, had failed to meet him in joint debate for the past two or three days. At Roxboro, on Monday, so we are told by several parties who were present, Mr. Brooks lambasted Merritt unmercifully, and that the latter sat with head hung down, with an expression like a sheep-killing dog upon his face.

All over the district the indications are bright for a victory for Brooks, and we believe that a majority of the voters will choose him as our next Solicitor. We know of no man in the State that we would as soon see elected as Mr. Brooks. He is an excellent young man, and will make a capital Solicitor. See to it, democrats, that Brooks gets your vote.—Durham Sun.

MAKES A PLAIN STATEMENT

I have never blamed them for desiring to perfect their own autonomy; but it ought to be done in an open and candid way, and not embrace the occasion of a heated political campaign to furnish wind for their sails.

P. S.—Since writing the above this week's Advocate has arrived. In it the "senior editor" has an editorial making a disclosure of the position I have taken in the above paragraph. He seems to take the back track, and lauds and praises the Dukes from away back, and says their moves were pure, and they are good men, etc., etc., etc. My, My! What a funny world this is, anyhow. But let us be careful about these praises. The "senior editor" knows what he is after. He says:

"The plan proposed, as we understand it is this: At Winston take such legal and conference action as is necessary to dissolve the joint ownership of all school property that now belongs equally to the two conferences on the basis of an equitable division of the same; each conference retaining the lands and buildings located in its territory, and the endowment, being divided equitably, or as agreed upon by a joint commission. Whatever money we get by the division, etc., be used to endow and equip Old Trinity."

There, now; you have it in plain words, and some intimation of the reason of praising the Dukes! But let me ask, in the name of "conscience," which is the ground of all their complaint—how they can take Mr. Duke's money for equipping and endowing Old Trinity? It clears it of villainess, does it, to take it away from Trinity College and give it to Old Trinity? What sort of a hocus pocus conscience is that which proposes such a plan? In one breath the "senior editor" says, "We must be relieved from connection with the American Tobacco Company," which means Mr. Duke's money or it means nonsense, and in the next breath deliberately claims a larger share of that money for Old Trinity as a college for the Western Conference! Is this honest thinking, and acting and writing?

The "senior editor" refers to a case in the Western Conference where an attempt was made to influence the Bishop to punish a preacher in his appointment because said preacher was not friendly to Trinity College, would not allow a man to hold and express his own opinion in a matter of his kind. Outsiders have charged this, but it is the first time a minister of the Methodist church, and he a "senior editor," has ever, to my knowledge, impugned the integrity of his brethren and the appointing power by such a charge. In the name of the church I denounce it as untrue. There may have been some isolated case at some time where such an attempt was thought of, but as to there being any disposition on the part of Trinity College to establish any such influence I deny. Bro Carraway has made the same intimation and impugns the integrity, honor and piety of the appointing power of the Methodist church.

Let it be understood that I am not writing this to prevent Bros. Crawford and Carraway from consummating their scheme for a Western conference college: for that is a matter of indifference. I am not opposed to the "senior editor" having the presidency of a western conference college, nor am I opposed to Bro. Carraway holding a "professorship of Religion" in said college; it only when they seem willing to stab Trinity college and their own church for the sake of gratifying their own ambition, that I protest. Don't cry "persecution," brethren, for that is getting to be the weaklings' refuge. Nor am I defending the American Tobacco Company as a trust, for I do not know enough about it to do that; nor have I asked or obtained any information from Mr. Duke. But I may say this, that I do not believe any intelligent and well informed man or woman believes that Trinity college has identified itself with any so-called trust, so as to be in anywise controlled by it, and I am really sure that Mr. Duke has never tried to control it, nor does he desire to do so. I have known the movement from its inception, because I was the person to whom Mr. Duke and his sainted daughter made the first proposition of help for poor, struggling Trinity college. It had struggled along for many years, and when Dr. Crowell came he found the same difficulties and went into the same struggle. When I telegraphed him of Mr. Duke's offer, he replied: "Your telegram seemed an answer to prayer, for the night before I received it I was on my knees praying that God would open some way for Trinity."

Mr. Duke has never had any other purpose in all his gifts to the college of his church but that of helping to give education to the youth of both sexes in North Carolina. We have heard the cry for years from pulpit and platform, "why don't rich men do this, and why don't rich men do that? Why don't rich men endow Trinity college?" and the institution held out her hands imploring help for the good work in which she was engaged, and help at last came. After Mr. Duke had assured me of the money, I went to that large hearted Methodist, J. S. Carr, and told him of our great success, when this conversation took place: He asked, where do you propose to build the college?

I replied, on the Blackwell park. How do you propose to get the park? I replied, you will buy and donate it. What will it cost? I replied, $20,000.

He smiled at what seemed my impudence and said I will give it! But, our cry has been to rich men to give of their substance, and then when a generous, good man like Mr. Duke, puts down two or three hundred thousand dollars to help the church's work, and being fully able to do this he did it—gladly and from the purest motives; and then because he is rich, envy raises its voice and says "we ought not to take it because you did not make it honestly," and every little smart-aleck parades his "conscience" in a-buse. What encouragement, I ask, is there for a rich man to do what the church is continually asking him to do, when he is met with this kind of meanness?

Rev. Mr. Carraway, in very bad taste, refers to Dr. Ivey, the N. C. conference editor of the Advocate, as the "front barrel" of the paper; and sneers at him for "being quick to catch and reply to everything against Trinity college." Well, has not the "front barrel" as much right to shoot its opinions as the hind-barrel? Does Mr. Carraway regard the North Carolina conference editor as a mere figure-head? If so, he has made a mistake in his man. And if that is all the proprietor—Mr. Crawford—wants, we might just as well understand it now before going any further with the farce.

We think we can assure these gentlemen that the great majority of the Methodist church in North Carolina does not endorse their onslaught upon Trinity college. Nor will the church be in a hurry to set up another college at Old Trinity to please these very tender consciences. Alas, these days furnish many trials to our faith in humanity, but this is the most severe.—Rev. Dr. E. A. Yates, in Morning Post.

Three Doctors in Consultation.

From Benjamin Franklin.
"When you are sick, what you like best is to be chosen for a medicine in the first place; what experience tells you is best, to be chosen in the second place; what reason (i. e. Theory) says is best is to be chosen in the last place. But if you can get Dr. Inclination, Dr. Experience and Dr. Reason to hold a consultation together, they will give you the best advice that can be taken."

When you have a bad cold Dr. Inclination would recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy because it is pleasant and safe to take. Dr. Experience would recommend it because it never fails to effect a speedy and permanent cure. Dr. Reason would recommend it because it is prepared on scientific principles, and acts on nature's plan in relieving the lungs, opening the secretions and restoring the system to a natural and healthy condition. GREENSBORO, N. C., Oct. 28, '98.
DEAR LITTLE CHILDREN:
My loving old heart was touched this morning when I observed your red little fingers as you lugged your books and lunch baskets on your way to school. I was a child once, many, many years ago, and seeing your discomforts carried me hurriedly back over the long years of my life to the days when I was a little girl. But I did not suffer with cold fingers, for the reason that my old grand mother knitted and kept me supplied with a bright colored pair of warm, all wool mittens. You, dear child, possibly haven't any old grand mother; or if you have, she in all probability hasn't the time to knit them for you.

For these reasons I have bothered myself with your interests and have found at my old friend's, Matthews, Chisholm, Stroud & Rankin, a full supply of all wool, warm, and nicely knitted mittens, in any color that you may desire, and all they cost is 25 cents per pair.

Tell your mothers and have them secure you a pair before they are all gone.

From your loving AUNT MARY.

BRIEF LOCAL MATTERS.

Mrs. D. E. Osborne returned at noon today from Raleigh.

Read J. Van Lindley's ad today and see his prices on cut flowers.

There will be no services at St. Agnes Catholic Church tomorrow.

Dr. J. C. Walton of Reidsville, was on the train going north, at noon.

Mr. E. C. Spinks, of Ramseur, was a welcome caller at our office this morning.

Fletcher Brooks left at noon today for Baltimore, to enter Baltimore Medical College.

A collection will be taken for the poor at Centenary church Sunday. Come prepared.

Mrs. S. E. Allen of Winston, is visiting her brother-in-law, W. B. Allen, at the Allen House.

D. Bendheim & Sons. present some interesting figures about dress goods, capes, etc., in their space today.

Rev. D. I. Craig of Reidsville, passed through at noon today returning home from the Presbyterian Synod, at Gastonia.

The Oak Ridge foot ball team passed through this morning enroute to Chapel Hill to play the University this afternoon.

The horses and baggage wagons of the Third Regular Cavalry passed through in three sections this morning, going South. The soldiers passed through this afternoon.

A "circus" fight took place today shortly after noon in the vacant lot just beyond Hudson's store. About twelve drinking farmers were engaged and none seemed to know who to hit. Policemen Jeffries and Pearce broke it up and sent the men off in their wagons.

On account of the circus posters occupying the local bill boards today and the time being so short. "Back on the Farm" for Tuesday night will be advertised only in the newspapers. The company uses beautiful and attractive bills but will not use them for so short a time.

The beautiful rural comedy, "Back On the Farm" will appear at the Academy of Music Tuesday, Nov. 1. The play tells a happy homespun story of life on the farm and is brimful of fun and funny situations. During the play numerous songs, dances and specialties all introduced. Illustrated songs and war views are also shown between the acts, making a continuous show. No waits. The Grassville centre band will parade Tuesday at noon. Watch for them.

J. H. WEST,
Cafe and Kandy Kitchen.

The Show, Parade and Rain.

The show trains arrived this morning a few hours late, and consequently the parade was delayed today. On account of the rain which began falling about 9 o'clock, some of the people became discouraged, and thought there would be no parade, but about 11 o'clock the steam calliope gave the signal, and one of the longest and grandest parades ever seen in Greensboro marched up Davis and down South Elm streets, and was gazed at by hundreds upon hundreds of people, who lined both streets. The drizzling rain took much of the gaiety off the procession, but it was pleasing, anyway. Despite the rain they are showing to a large crowd this afternoon. Show again at 8 o'clock tonight.

Mr. Walter Page to Lecture.

Mr. Walter Page, editor of the Atlantic Monthly, of Boston, one of the leading magazines in the United States will lecture at the Normal College during the present session. President Melver has not yet arranged the date but says it will be either in February or March. Mr. Page is a native North Carolinian and well known and deservedly popular in his native state and Dr. Melver could not have made a better selection.

The Social Standing of most men is much higher than the sum of their income. To such men it must be good news to learn that they do not have to pinch themselves in order that they may pay the extravagant tailor's bills. We sell perfectly fitting clothes for business, semi-dress or full dress occasions of unquestionable style and superb qualities at prices which permit the saving of almost half tailor's bills. Our best clothes are made by the famous New York tailors. Messrs. Fecheimer, Fishel & Co., whose label on every garment is a guarantee that the clothes are equal to "custom made" in every particular. Therefore, whether it is a sack suit, a cutaway or a Prince Albert frock, a pair of trousers, a top coat or an overcoat that you need, do yourself the justice to at least see our offerings—and then go to your tailor if you like—but you won't.
